

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A server determines whether or not replacement of at least one of parts of a POS terminal is necessary based on actual operation data of the respective parts of the POS terminal. If it is determined that replacement of the part is required, the schedule of a store manager and the schedule of a maintenance operator are collated with each other to determine a part-replacement operation date. Then, notification about the part-replacement operation date is given.